Quick Facts

Getting Here

Guatemala is a short plane ride from southern U.S. airports. Aurora International Airport (GUA) is located in Guatemala City. From there, it is about a 3-hour drive to Panajachel and a 15-minute boat ride to our dock.

Weather

Here at Lake Atitlan, we have two primary seasons: dry season and our lush green season. The dry season is typically from November to April (our peak season), during which time we have almost no rainfall and temperatures between 60 and 85 degrees Fahrenheit. May, June, September and October usually have sunny mornings and late afternoon showers that may continue into the evening. This is our quieter time of year when the caldera basin is extra green and fresh. In the middle of the two green periods, we have a dry spell called the “Canicula” (Summer Break). This usually occurs in July and August and brings loads of sunshine with only rare, variable rain in the evenings.

Visas

US, Canadian and European Union citizens will receive a 90-day tourist visa upon entering the country. No preliminary arrangements are necessary. If you are visiting from another region, please check your country’s visa requirements.

Communication

For internet on your personal device, we charge $3/day or $20/week for wifi. Please note: internet in Guatemala is not fast, and limited downloading is permitted. Phone service fees are based on country code. Check with your cell phone provider for foreign coverage.
